

One of the biggest and most successful projects that me and my friend made was the mod we made in a game called Lethal Company. <https://thunderstore.io/c/lethal-company/p/CHILLAX/>

But the best one yet is the Chilla Scraps with over 300k downloads.

We did not plan much for the mod, we just simply want to add small scraps that don't have any perks. We did this by using the community-made modding tool

However, we had issues with the item rotation and size when it was on hand, and the floor

But it was later fixed with no problem.

But we are not quite satisfied with the item. We found them quite boring and not useful and funny. We want to add items that have special perks when you react to them. We want to design items that are both useful and also cause some funny moments as well

We made “Boink” an item that if you interact with them you will be launched backward. It can be used for movement or for those who aren't aware of the item, some funny stuff would happen.

We instantly know this during our testing

After we published it online, there were lots of positive reviews

Here are clips of people using the item

Later we made more

Made “cup noodle” that restore your health

And “freddy fazbear” that constantly makes noise

But we want to make more

I got the idea of making the “death note” a book in which you write your friend's user name and they will instantly die. We knew it was possible due to one of my friends knew how to use unity so we got that working.

So we downloaded the model of the book via Sketchfab and started working on the UI

And start adding the death effects

But it's not very useful, is it? It is only used for grieving your friend so we decide that you can also kill the enemy giving some usefulness to the item. We try to design our item and can get both laughter and in-game usefulness. And it went quite well

We later fixed a couple of bugs with the name not showing and also nerfing the item by breaking it upon use.

We added it online and the feedback was overwhelming. It has become a mini viral hit.

And it melts my heart even more when it gets the attention of our childhood hero

We just love H2ODelirious

Then we got the idea of making an item that has to play with the RNG

We came up with an “Uno reverse card” that swaps the user position with a random player or the enemy.

It can be very useful to use it if u have the full item and would swap it with someone who’s near the exit to maximize the time or use it when you are in a very bad spot and then swap with some causing death to that person. Your choice...

And that's it for now.

In the meantime, I also made a custom suite for every one of my friends and updated it almost daily just for fun

Hopefully, you enjoy this short game diary of the mod we made.

There are a lot of ideas that we haven't implemented yet. We still plan to keep updating the mod but not any time soon.

I have to thank my friend for helping me with a huge chunk of this mini-project we made, it was truly a group effort.
